

Treatment of Babies and Children Within a Cranio-Sacral Osteopathic Approach

– Gez Lamb

Babies and children present with a number of issues that can be traced to the experience in the womb, the birthing process the early bonding with the parents and the adaptation to life in all its varied demands.

Gez has treated babies and children for 37 years and has come across a rich variety of presentations including colic, constant crying, poor sleep patterns, tantrums, bedwetting, hyperactivity, ADHD and autism. All of these presentations have their own particular cause which has more to do with the child's inner experience of life than with the mechanical presentation of the cranio-sacral mechanism.

This talk will explore the mechanisms behind these presentations illustrated with case histories and descriptions of the treatment approach used to restore harmony and balance. Gez will discuss the philosophy that he has discovered from years of application of treatment which he has used to facilitate the treatment response in the individual child.

There will be an opportunity to ask questions and reflect upon the mechanisms by which treatment may be made effective.
